

Robins Awards Criteria for The Legacy of Utah State Award

The Legacy of Utah State Award is given each year to recognize and emphasize a student who represents the heart and soul of the university. Students should show a commitment to the institution and their program of study, as well as demonstrate internal involvement and service, department dedication, perseverance during times of adversity, and contribution behind the scenes.

The dean is to appoint a committee with students, faculty, and administrative representation to select an average, but committed student from each college. The Robins Committee will then appoint a committee to select the winner of the “Legacy of Utah State Award” from the seven college nominees. The person is recognized at the annual Robins Awards.

CRITERIA:

The recipient shall have participated in the following manner:

- Commitment to institution and their program of study
- Internal involvement and service
- Department dedication
- Perseverance during times of adversity
- Contribution behind the scenes
- Hard worker and good work ethic
- Must be a Utah State University student

NOMINATION MATERIALS:

In order to provide some uniformity to the selection process, each must contain the following materials:

- Nomination letter from the Dean of the college
- Letter of support from the Department head
- Letter of support from the faculty who nominated them (if the faculty member is the dean or department head, no additional letter is required.)

Submit materials to the Vice President for Student Services Office before 27 February 2009.
